

How I'm supporting Financial Planning Week 2011...

21 - 27 Nov 2011

Pete Matthew CFP<sup>CM</sup>, Jackson Financial Services.

"I'm convinced that a massive part of getting Financial Planning into the consciousness of our nation is education. This should happen from an early age, at school and at home, and we need to come up with a better system than saddling our students with huge debts at the outset of their working lives. But what about the grown-ups? Financial Planning Week is a fantastic initiative which deserves to make a big difference.

I love the fact that much of my time as a Financial Planner is spent educating my clients. It's amazing how little even well educated, worldly-wise people know about the basics of financial management. It is this shortfall I set out to address with MeaningfulMoney.tv, my education website full of videos explaining financial concepts in easy language. There are now over 150 videos on the site, with plenty more to come.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION

I'm stepping things up a gear for Financial Planning Week though, and doing five live shows over the Monday to Friday of the week.

I feel like I'm sticking my neck out a bit, as there is much that can go wrong, but I'm excited about the challenge. Hopefully, the benefits of getting decent, easy to understand financial information out there, will cover over any gaffes!"

What are you doing to support Financial Planning Week 2011?

Follow us: www.twitter.com/IFP\_UK

Like our Facebook page: www.facebook.com

Email us: Fpweek@financialplanning.org.uk